

Mary G. Adams Transformation Strategist & IT STEM Professional

Mary G. Adams is IT professional who has spent most of her 30+ year career with Procter & Gamble. Her experience includes IT applications & infrastructure, data analytics, and global operations. She founded the Greater Cincinnati STEM Collaborative \(GCSC\) non-profit as a P&G executive on-loan in 2011.

GCSC helps prepare students to join the STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics) workforce through connected, robust learning pathways. GCSC's vision is that Greater Cincinnati continues its growth as a technologically rich, vibrant community with a STEM workforce that is representative of the region's population.

GCSC's workforce development and STEM Education mission is driven by a broad set of diverse and committed leaders (from business, K-12 and higher education, and non-profits) from across the Greater Cincinnati region. GCSC participates in two national STEM-focused networks, the STEM Learning Ecosystem Initiative and US2020 STEM Coalition.
